N211F accident near, [REDACTED] Millbrook Road, Newark Illinois
SUBJECT Accident
DIGEST
Inspector Anthony arrived near the accident scene ([REDACTED] Millbrook Road, Newark IL.) at 6am 08/01/2016 and waited for Kendall County Police's escort to the accident site. At 6:30 am inspector Anthony arrived at the accident site. The aircraft, a Cessna 172 was located in a hay field with the nose of the aircraft on the ground. It appears the aircraft made a successful landing in a cut hay field. At the end of the landing rollout the aircraft went over a berm made of earth. The rise of the berm is about 5 feet high. It appears the aircraft came off the ground. There are no marks on the ground till about 20 feet after the berm. There is an impact mark at this point. There are pieces of blue and white fiberglass in the impact mark which appear to have come from the nose wheel pant. The aircraft appears to have landed on the nose landing gear and propeller causing damage to both parts. The fire wall was damage. The scene was photographed. Both aircraft fuel tanks had fuel in them. A piece of hay was dipped into the fuel tanks to ensure there was fuel, both tanks had evidence of fuel. Flight controls were checked, aileron and elevator controls moved freely. Rudder controls would not move. Throttle and carb heat controls would not move. Oil was present in the engine and amber in color. While inspecting inside the aircraft, a Chicago Sectional was found unfolded and stuffed between the front seats. The sectional was dated 30 APR 2015. A Honda generator was found on the right front seat with fuel in the tank. Departed scene at 08:40. The aircraft was moved to Springfield Robertson County Airport (M91), at [REDACTED] Airport Road, Springfield, Tennessee. The NTSB will conduct an engine inspection at this location.
