Mr Dunn,

We were sitting in a "arena" viewing a military reenactment at the Pacific WWII War Museum when the made a low level pass over us and climbed out. Nothing seemed to be wrong but as the pilot made a right hand bank the aircraft started to drop. We assumed that every thing as normal as seen in picture #36. Then I quickly snapped another shot as he came closer to the ground. The trees then were not allowing us to see anything else and we waited for the aircraft to climb out of the "dive." When he did not reappear, we knew something was wrong. Then we heard the first responders going to the crash site. Picture #37 is the last one I snapped. You will need to zoom in on the plane. Please confirm receipt of these.

Hope these will assist you.

Sincerely,

Warren Newberry
