Contact: Alex Lemishko, NTSB, Central Region

Mr. Berry was at the Blake Field Airport and watched the accident airplane take off and climb toward the northeast. A short while later, Mr. Berry watched the airplane begin a series of acrobatic maneuvers. He saw the airplane enter a loop. When the airplane was at the top of the loop inverted it began to spin and come down flat. The pilot flew the airplane out of the spin, and he watched as the airplane climbed back up and begin the same maneuver again. However, this time when the airplane was coming down in the spin, the pilot did not regain control of the airplane. The airplane continued to spin inverted to the ground. Mr. Berry said that the airplane disappeared behind a hill. He knew the airplane had crashed. He immediately called emergency services.
