Mr. Sanchez was given my phone number and called me in relation to the accident involving N3233V, in Telluride, CO, on 3/30/2023. I asked him to describe what happened. He told me he was landing on runway 27 at KTEX and the winds were strong and were varying in direction. He touched down and was rolling out and slowing the airplane when a gust of wind caused the airplane to turn. He attempted to correct but the airplane went off the side of the runway. When asked if there were any preimpact mechanical problems with the airplane he stated that there were not and that it was just the wind that he could not correct for. I receive his e-mail address and informed him that I or another NTSB investigator would be sending him a report form to complete.
