DIGEST
I met with Margaret Dodson at Dacy Airport on 1/8/2025 at approximately 4:00 PM. She had been scheduled to fly with Clifford Foskett at 1:00 PM to continue a flight review. This would have been their 4th flight together. When she arrived at the airport , she parked her car within view of the pilot's hanger and helped him pull the plane out. The pilot had planned to taxi to the other side of the field for fuel before their lesson. Margaret noticed the plane was difficult to get started, but when it did, the engine sounded as if it was at full throttle. She stated the pilot did not reduce the power but continued to move forward at this high speed, and a few seconds later, saw his left wingtip strike the side of the hangers. The plane continued to move forward and appeared to pivot to the left, eventually striking the corner of the last hanger almost head on. Ms. Dodson ran to help the pilot get out of the airplane. When she approached the airplane, she saw him on the passenger side. She stated that he appeared to be alright but was moving very slowly.
