Morning Eric

I'm still looking for the photos. Lost in space.

The aircraft was being used for instruction Part 61. The student who was getting checked out for the first time air a conventional gear ended up ground looping the aircraft upon landing. The instructor tried to recover by placing full power in and performing a go-around. He stated he was to late and lost control of the aircraft and banking the aircraft to the left side making contact to the ground with the left wing tip and then contacting the prop as the aircraft fell forward and over on its back along the longitudinal axis coming to a rest. Aircraft had substantial damage and according to the owner the aircraft was totaled per replacing the aircraft. The instructor pilot was sent a 709 letter for a re-exam in a conventional gear aircraft. That should take place in the next couple of weeks.

Ill try to get the photos to you asap. Talk to you soon. Bob Drapala

Good morning Robert,

Can you send me a few pictures of the damaged airplane along with a short inspector statement on the aircraft damage. I am closing out the case and those items are needed.

Thanks
