Complete Narrative of Incident:

Pilot of N254WM was attempting to conduct a touch-and-go operation on RWY 15. The aircraft hovered just above the runway during the landing attempt and never made contact with the pavement. The aircraft then struck a group of mangroves beyond the threshold before the pilot could apply power to gain altitude. This caused the aircraft to 'cartwheel' and crash into the water just beyond the runway end. Airport Operations staff member Nathan Goff witnessed the event and immediately called 911 to report the incident. Nathan then responded to the incident location where the pilot (Robert Munn) was able to free himself from the aircraft unharmed.

At this time, emergency response personnel arrived on scene and a NOTAM was issued to close the runway. Upon evaluation of the pilot by EMS personnel, it was determined that no injuries were sustained as a result of the incident. Ramon Grillo with South Florida FAA FSDO was notified of the incident via telephone at approximately 1100. No response by the FAA or NTSB was necessary as there were no fatalities or property damage that resulted from the incident.

Upon my arrival at 1150, emergency personnel were clearing the area and the pilot was completing his statement to Collier County Deputies. The focus then shifted to inspection of airport facilities and aircraft recovery. The plane remained intact, partially submerged in the water at the approach end of RWY 33. There being no further hazards or obstructions to aeronautical activity, the runway was inspected and reopened at 1200.

The immediate concern at this time was the possibility of fuel contamination as the port-side wing of the plane had become fractured during the incident. At the recommendation of Collier County Emergency Manager Dan Summers, Sea Tow of Marco Island was called out to confine the area with containment boom until recovery crews and equipment are mobilized to remove the aircraft. Sea Tow arrived at 1505 to isolate the contaminated area. The site was secured and all parties were clear at 1530. Aircraft removal is scheduled for the morning of 10/19/14.
