And by those, I mean any training materials, not necessarily "Proficiency Forms." Again, the manual is provided for guidance only. We expect the helicopter subcontractors to provide training.

Ms. White,

I only have the "Helicopter Safety" excerpt from your manual, so I don't have that reference.

How about copies of their Helicopter Proficiency forms?

Thank you,

Brian

Mr. Rayner,

The manual you are quoting from is his is provided for guidance only. Operating unit management is ultimately responsible for workplace safety (see page xxxi). Training for the lineman is usually performed in conjunction with the helicopter company, here, HiLine Helicopters.

Good morning Ms. White,

Can you please provide the documentation that illustrates how these linemen were “designated” for helicopter operations and the records that indicate where they received the training outlined above?

Thank you,

Brian
