

Aircrews will assist each other to assure a thorough pre-flight inspection, readiness and availability.

Personal equipment is to be checked for completeness, cleanliness and to ensure that it is fully operational.

The Pilot and Co-Pilot will be aware and avoid all potential distractions and/or interruptions during their pre-flight activities. Diversion of attention during pre-flight could cause serious consequences later during flight. While impossible to totally avoid, the flight crew must be able to prioritize the distraction, act accordingly and when applicable, return to the point of the interruption and continue.

Personnel should avoid being the cause of a distraction or interruption.

- No OC spray or chemical mace will be carried or worn by any law enforcement personnel.

XIII. SINGLE CREWMEMBER OPERATIONS

Single crew member flights may be conducted with passengers aboard as long as the mission dictates such a crew.

A first line supervisor may authorize single crew flights.

Single pilot operations during mission profiles at night are prohibited.
