December 13 – December 20, 2018

Peter Renzulli and Daniel Renzulli

Overview

The Renzulli family, comprising Peter, Lori, Meredith and Daniel, traveled from different parts of the country on December 14 and 15 and met up in Orlando, Florida for a Disney family vacation. We have been to Disney many times over the years – a family of 4, parents-only, father-son, mother-daughter – and regard Walt Disney World as the go-to, relaxing vacation choice. Unlike many families who feel compelled to cram as many experiences and rides as possible into their stay, our family's approach to this Disney vacation was consistent with all our prior vacations – sleep late, have a (very) late breakfast or early lunch, go to a park in the late afternoon, (maybe) go on the rides for which we had a Fast Pass, and enjoy a meal in the park at a favorite restaurant.

Background for Peter

The details in respect of Peter's flight instruction for the period December 10 – 14 will be provided by Daniel Moore of Watauga Flight Service LLC, but I will provide other details of which I am aware, including background information prior to December 13th.

Peter flew United Airlines (UA3463) on Sunday, December 9th from EWR to CMH, where he met Dan Moore. Peter rented a car from Enterprise and he and Mr. Moore drove together to Tiffin, Ohio that evening. Tiffin Aire, which was in possession of N307JM since November 10th, had recently completed the pre-purchase inspection and agreed-upon work on it. Peter stayed one night at the Holiday Inn Express in Tiffin, Ohio. In the late morning and mid-afternoon, respectively, on Monday, December 10th, Peter and Mr. Moore flew N307JM from Seneca County Municipal Airport (16G) to Lafayette Municipal Airport (3M7), then onward to Elizabethton Municipal Airport (0A9). Exhibit A to this timeline is the recent flight history for N307JM, which shows the airports visited by Peter and Mr. Moore during the course of Peter's specialized Malibu instruction.

Peter rented a car from Avis and stayed at the Hampton Inn Johnson City (Tennessee) during the course of his training with Mr. Moore. Peter was eating clean and healthy, and mostly organic food at home, and he told me and each of the kids as well that finding healthy food in and around where he was staying was a challenge. He went to local grocery stores, rather than the restaurants in the area, to find fresh fruits and vegetables to eat. When he had to eat out, such as when he and Mr. Moore were at an airport's café, he told the service staff that he was a vegetarian so they would bring him any and all vegetables they had in the kitchen. Peter finished his training with Mr. Moore on Friday, December 14th and checked out of the Hampton Inn at 8:14am. Exhibit B is the first Hampton Inn guest folio, for the period December 10th to 14th. Peter called me on Friday, December 14th to tell me he had finished his training. He also told me that he wanted to rest up before flying to Orlando Florida and was going to stay another night in Tennessee before meeting the rest of the family. Exhibit C is the second Hampton Inn guest folio, for the period December 14th to 15th. He checked out of the Hampton Inn, for the second time, at 8:55am on December 15th and departed 0A6 at 11am bound for KISM. Peter arrived at KISM at 2:39pm on Saturday, December 15th and parked N307JM with Signature Flight Support. Exhibit D is a copy of the receipt for the services provided by Signature Flight Support while the plane was in their possession. Peter also made arrangements for Spectrum Aero to change the oil in the plane while we were enjoying our Disney vacation. Peter took an Uber from KISM to Saratoga Springs Resort and Spa and arrived at approximately 4pm. He caught up with the rest of the family at the Artist's Palette, which is the quick service restaurant at Saratoga Springs.

Background for Daniel

Daniel and his sister Meredith are both students at Michigan State University and were taking their final exams during the period December 10th to 14th. Both Meredith's and Daniel's last final exam was on Wednesday, December 12th, so he and his sister had a few days to pack and prepare for our Disney vacation and winter break in New Jersey. Daniel also prepared and shipped home on December 13th [confirm date] via UPS all of his hockey gear because he and Peter play in a pickup Christmas Eve hockey game among the local pro shops (organized by Daniel's former hockey coach, who is also the owner of the pro shops where Daniel worked).

The kids took an Uber from East Lansing, Michigan to DTW on the morning of Saturday, December 15th and flew together on Delta flight 2718 from DTW to MCO. The flight arrived at MCO at approximately 1:15pm, after which they collected their bags at baggage claim and boarded the Magical Express bus at 1:42pm. They arrived at Saratoga Springs at 2:33pm. I caught up with the kids at Saratoga Springs and we had lunch at the Artist's Palette, which is the quick service restaurant in the main building, beginning at 3:20pm.

Saturday, December 15

As noted above, Daniel and Meredith arrived at Saratoga Springs at 2:33pm and Peter arrived at approximately 4pm. I purchased with my MagicBand three turkey, cranberry and brie sandwiches, two bottles of water, and one Coke Zero from the Artist's Palette at 3:20pm. Daniel ate one of the sandwiches and drank the Coke Zero. Peter arrived shortly thereafter and used his MagicBand to purchase chili at 4:32pm. We hung out at the Artist's Palette, together as a family for the first time since early October, until I got the text alert that our room was ready. We collected our various bags from Bell Services and got a ride to our room with the Bell Services guys.

We did not have any Fast Passes or plans for any of the Disney parks that night. Peter took the rental car from approximately 7pm to 11pm to attend a client's holiday party at The Capital Grille (9101 International Drive, Orlando). Meredith, Daniel and I took the boat to Disney Springs and had (an underwhelming) dinner at Bongo's Cuban Café. We shared empanadas and Daniel had the chicken and rice dinner. I used my MagicBand at 9:41pm to charge the dinner cost to our room.

Sunday, December 16

Seeing no movement in the kids' room by 11:00am, Peter and I walked to the Artist's Palette and charged to his MagicBand two Spanish omelettes and one refillable resort mug. We realized we should have purchased only one omelet because they are quite large. We shared a coffee from the refillable mug. Still seeing no movement from the kids' room by the time we got back, I drove us to the local grocery store so we could shop for fresh fruits and vegetables, boneless, skinless chicken cutlets, Greek yogurt, milk, maple syrup, and orange juice. Our suite at Saratoga Springs had a full kitchen, so we were able to prepare our own meals and have ready access to non-park food. Peter cooked all the chicken cutlets so that we could eat them whenever we wanted.

We made it the Magic Kingdom at 3:52pm and Peter and the kids headed directly to Space Mountain because our Fast Passes expired at 3:55pm. I got a locker at the park entrance and they rode Space Mountain at 4:13pm. We met at The Diamond Horseshoe Jamboree restaurant in Frontierland for a 4:35pm dinner reservation. We ordered three adult dinners (an assortment of chicken, brisket, and pork served family style) and one vegetarian dinner (for Peter) and I paid with my MagicBand at 6:14pm.

We had tickets for Mickey's Very Merry Christmas Party that night, which extends the park hours to midnight for those with tickets. Meredith and Peter had coffee near Space Mountain at 7:14pm, after which Peter, Meredith and Daniel rode Space Mountain again. The park was still crowded even though the ticketed event was meant to minimize wait times at rides. We went as a family on the PeopleMover in Tomorrowland and then we walked around and stopped here and there for the "special treats" offered by Disney at various locations (e.g., "hot" chocolate and shrink-wrapped cookies). Daniel used his MagicBand to purchase a Nutella waffle at the Sleepy Hollow food stand, which offers a good view of Cinderella's Castle. We parked ourselves there for a while and watched the light show on the castle walls.

Meredith's favorite princess is and always has been Snow White, so we waited in line to meet Snow White and Prince Ferdinand, and also met Sleeping Beauty and Prince Philip. We took family PhotoPass photos with all of them at 9:47pm, then headed to the exit and our rental car. I drove the family back to Saratoga Springs at around 10:30pm.

Monday, December 17

The family spent the afternoon and evening at EPCOT on this day. Consistent with our approach to Disney family vacations, we slept late and scanned our MagicBands into EPCOT at 1:10pm. We had had breakfast in the room – yogurt and granola, and Daniel ate some of the chicken cutlets Peter had cooked the day before. In search of healthy lunch options, we went to The Land pavilion and ate at the Sunshine Seasons quick service place. Peter had a vegan dish with jasmine rice, Daniel had a beef Mongolian dish with fried rice, and we all shared a bowl of fruit and bottles of water.

We has FastPasses to Test Track between 2:40 and 3:40, so the four of us headed over there after lunch. We rode Test Track at 3pm. We spent some time in Mouse Gear, which is a large shop in Future World, then we made our way to World Showcase. We were early for our 4:15pm Candlelight Dinner reservation at La Hacienda de San Angel in the Mexico pavilion, so we sat by the World Showcase Lagoon at La Cantina while we waited for our reservation time. Once seated for our dinner, we shared empanadas for appetizers, Peter had the salad entrée and Daniel has the chicken entrée. I paid for dinner with my MagicBand at 6:11pm, after which we headed toward the America pavilion for the 6:45pm showing of the Candlelight Processional. Gary Sinise was the guest celebrity narrator for the orchestral and choral production of the Christmas story.

We walked the rest of the way around World Showcase, stopping in the shops of France, Canada, and the UK. Peter and I shared an Ottawa Apple in Canada at 9:26pm and a Pimms No. 1 at 9:57pm. We walked from World Showcase, through Future World and took the tram to the parking lot. Although I am the family driver, I had Meredith drive us back to Saratoga Springs in an abundance of caution and prudence.

Tuesday, December 18

I scheduled a special Disney Vacation Club members-only event for the family for this morning. I drove us to Bay Lake Tower, which is part of the Contemporary Resort, for a Painting at the Top of the World class that started at 9:30am. They had fruit and Danish available for the participants. We finished our paintings at 12:07pm and headed back to Saratoga Springs. Daniel purchased with his MagicBand a lobster club sandwich and a Saratoga salad with chicken and brought it back to the room for everyone to share. We scanned our MagicBands at Hollywood Studios entrance at 3:03pm.

We headed directly to Toy Story Mania because we has FastPasses between 3:10 and 4:10pm. We rode Toy Story Mania (Lori and Daniel vs. Peter and Meredith), after which Daniel purchased three bottles of water at 3:50pm. Our next FastPass was Rock 'n' Roller Coaster between 4:20 and 5:20pm, so we headed over to that section of the park after hanging out in the Star Wars Launch Bay area and checking out the gift shop and displays. We rode the Rock 'n' Roller Coaster at 4:36pm. We stopped to watch street performers as we were walking toward Star Tours, where we had FastPasses between 5:40 and 6:40pm. We stopped in front of the Star Tours entrance to watch the Jedi Training show and then we rode Star Tours together.

We had dinner reservations at the 50s Prime Time Café for 7:40pm. Peter had the fried chicken dinner with two sides of vegetables and a salad wedge, and Daniel had the chicken pot pie and crab cakes. Peter and I shared a glass of white sangria. Daniel used his MagicBand to pay for dinner, because he was closest to the server, at 9:28pm. We left Hollywood Studios shortly thereafter (the park was closing) and I drove the family back to Saratoga Springs.

Wednesday, December 19

Peter and I went to Disney Springs at 10:00am because I wanted to buy some items before we went to the Magic Kingdom for our last full day at Disney. We always go to Magic Kingdom on our last day of any Disney vacation. Meredith and Daniel were asleep in their room. Peter and I shopped and walked around Disney Springs, and then he bought a caramel apple at Goofy's Candy Company at 11:55am for us to share.

Peter and I went back to Saratoga Springs and Daniel was eating the leftover fried chicken from our previous night's dinner at the 50s Prime Time Café. Peter and Daniel discussed the next day's flight plan, the time they wanted to leave Saratoga Springs for KISM, and that Peter had consulted with the insurance company and obtained their permission for Daniel to accompany Peter in the Malibu as a safety pilot. Peter also added that the weights and balances requirements might prevent him from transporting some of the luggage. Meredith and I were booked on a United flight in the last afternoon of December 20th, so we would take any luggage that they could not transport safely.

The three of us (Meredith was already at the Magic Kingdom visiting a friend in the Disney College Program) scanned our MagicBands at the Magic Kingdom entrance at 3:58pm. We caught up with Meredith and then took multiple family PhotoPass pictures on Main Street USA at 4:13pm. We then walked up Main Street USA and made a left into AdventureLand. We rode Pirates of the Caribbean at 4:32pm.

We headed toward FrontierLand because I had made reservations for 5:05pm at the Liberty Tree Tavern, which is Peter's favorite restaurant because it is Thanksgiving every day. The meal is served family style, so we all enjoyed salad, turkey, pot roast, oven-roasted pork, herb stuffing, macaroni and cheese, and seasonal vegetables, with toffee pudding for dessert. Daniel used his MagicBand to pay for dinner at 7:17pm.

Peter had stated that he wanted to leave Saratoga Springs for KISM at 6:30am the next morning, so we did not linger in the park but rather headed back Saratoga Springs shortly after we finished dinner. The boys packed and I did laundry and emptied the refrigerator and we were in bed by 10pm.

Thursday, December 20

We left Saratoga Springs at 6:30am as planned and I drove Peter and Daniel to Kissimmee Gateway Airport. Peter requested and received the log book entry from Spectrum Aero in respect of the oil change, which is attached as Exhibit E. Signature Flight Support towed N307JM from Spectrum Aero to Signature Flight Support's covered area just outside the doors while Peter and Daniel were reviewing the real-time weather charts in the pilot briefing room. Peter and Daniel discussed Peter's plan to fly between the two green stretches of weather and get up to ~22,000 feet of altitude and over any adverse weather conditions that were in the area at the lower altitudes.

The boys and I waited in the lobby for N307JM to be towed to Signature Flight Support. I got my first-ever glimpse of the aircraft at 7:30am when it was towed to the covered area. The luggage (one large suitcase and one Vera Bradley duffel case, both under 45 pounds) and two flight bags were brought out to the aircraft and loaded by Peter and Daniel into the back of the plane. Daniel boarded the plane first and Peter showed him how the top and bottom doors closed and latched at 7:45am. I took two more pictures of the exterior of the aircraft as I walked around it and toward the door back into Signature Flight Support. Peter asked me to settle up the bill for services (attached as Exhibit D) so he could concentrate on his pre-flight checklists.

That was the last time I saw Peter and Daniel alive.
