This may not be helpful, but the plane that crashed in Asheboro Friday night came over the stadium of the Southwest High School Football game Friday night.
It circled, as this stadium is close to the airport. It made the turn, I was telling the guy next to me about VFR and flying...

The plane changed attitude from a longitudinal flight path to a vertical downward flight path.
There was no hesitation, no engine cutout. It actually sounded like it throttled up when in the vertical descent.

Thank you,
