

Passenger Statement, 16MAY2022

After the plane touched down Music City Executive Airport, we heard and felt a loud bump as if we hit a pothole in the runway. As we were rolling out my husband commented, "it feels like we're leaning to the right. We may have blown a tire." We slowed down in preparation to make the right-hand turn onto the taxiway but while making the turn, the plane began leaning more to the right until the right wing dragged the ground. We came to a stop in the turn but off the runway. Upon exiting the plane, we discovered the right gear had collapsed. We were unharmed but the gear and the step were collapsed under the right wing.
