At about 7:41am I was driving on old Smyrna Road headed East. I was driving slow with traffic when I noticed a small single engine Cessna type air craft flying low above the Grove Park neighborhood development. It was flying maybe 75ft off ground. It looked to be trying to avoid the trees. I watched as it clipped the power line and crash into the trees. There was no explosion on impact. I then parked my truck and called 911. I got out of my truck to see if anyone was alive. About that time, a man fell from the plane. He was a middle aged, bald, white male. Had on a tan/brown shirt + jeans. When he fell it sounded like he may have tried to get out of the plane. He looked to have no injuries to his body other than those suffered from the fall. There was no movement after he fell to the ground, so I did not attempt to administer aid as EMT was on the way. He looked to have hit his ~~head~~ head as there was blood on the pavement around his head. I then saw fire come from the plane. I heard the plane shift in the trees and fall on his body. The plane then exploded and fire engulfed his body. I saw no one else involved in the crash. Brentwood Fire/Police then arrived.
