About 7:30 while working in the yard I heard a loud noise in the sky followed by several more loud unusual noises, whining explosion type sounds and crashing sound. During the noises I looked up to try to determine what was causing the sound. I looked toward [REDACTED] up in the sky and saw a [REDACTED] shaped piece of debris - gray in color falling + rocking back + forth in the sky. I tried to yell to warn the neighbor of the falling part and took my off the piece that was falling. I assumed that what I saw was part of the tail section.

Statement of John F. McGowan LCDR USN (Ret.). May 8, 2023

On the evening of May 7th at approximately 7PM my wife and I were at home when a violent wind and rain storm arrived at our house located at [REDACTED] Reliance, Tr [REDACTED]. I estimate that the wind gust were over 40 MPH. We heard a noise best described as a "whomp" that was not like any we had heard previously during storms. I did not hear anything that made me think it involved an aircraft as a retired pilot. We did not notice any other anomalies.
