DIGEST
Visited Mrs. Tweed at the hospital and conducted interview. Due to Mrs. Tweed condition, a written statement is not possible for sometime. Mrs. Tweed exhibited significant memory gaps of the accident. She stated that she remembered coming in on the approach but didn't remember attempting to touch down and that after that all she remembered was "turning to the right. I'm not sure if we even touched down, I just remember turning to the right. We kept turning to the right and then I saw the trees. I remember thinking I'd rather go down in the trees than in an open field. We've watched lots of training videos on aircraft stalls and it seems like people that stall in open fields don't make it". After that, she remember waking up in the ambulance. I asked Mrs. Tweed if she is a student pilot and she stated that she has recently started flight school in Greeneville, TN. She does not have a student pilot certificate yet.
