Gulf Shores Intl/ Jack Edwards Fld (KJKA), Gulf Shores, Alabama

Aeromarine Aviation, LLC– Student Pilot

On December, 30, 2025 at approx. 9:30am we left from Destin, FL headed to Gulf Shores, Alabama VFR with flight following atc services in N601BA, an Icon Aircraft Inc, A5.

At approximately 10:50am we were preparing for a normal landing on runway 35 at KJKA. Listened to local ATIS and recieved a landing clearance from the tower. We did our landing checklist where we confirmed that the gear was down and locked. We performed this gear check on three separate occasions, prior to touch down. We examined the gear via the switch, the indicator light, and visually.

Once the aircraft touched down, the nose gear quickly collapsed. We were not injured and tower confirmed shortly thereafter that we landed perfectly on the center-line. Notwithstanding the nose gear collapse, the landing was soft and smooth. I reported to the tower that there was a nose wheel collapse, got out of the plane to assess the damage and decided it would likely only be considered an incident. Decided to fold the wings and hand walk the aircraft to secure in a hangar.

There was no other damage other than the nose gear area. This has happened a handful of times previously on this model aircraft with this nose landing gear style being at least the third iteration from the manufacture.

OPERATOR/OWNER SAFETY RECOMMENDATION (How could this accident/incident have been prevented?)
