Albert P. Nixon
Senior Aviation Accident Investigator
Western Pacific Region

Date: August 3, 2017
Person Contacted: Paul Suffern (NTSB Meteorologist)
NTSB Accident Number: WPR17LA163

Narrative:

On an email from Paul Suffern (NTSB), the following is a summary of what he stated:

- A typical summer day for Las Vegas.
- Winds picking up by lunchtime and chance of afternoon thunderstorms.
- Gusty surface winds from 140° to 150° between 10 to 20 knots.
- Thunderstorms were well northwest of the accident site and did not send out any windy conditions that would create anymore turbulence than already present.
