I interviewed the passenger who was seated in the forward right seat, who was a brother to the pilot. He gave a description of the severity of his injuries, and his recovery. He stated that his brother is doing much better than he is. When I asked about the flight, he stated that he remembers looking at the Horseshoe Hills, near the end of the flight, and then a 'line wire' got in the way. The passenger stated that he remembered wanting to be back at the gym at 1730 that evening to visit the gym, so he said the accident must have happened around 1630. He said the airplane was operating perfectly, and repeated that the 'line wire' just got in the way.
