Eleazar,

Thanks for the phone conversation. Attached is a picture of the amount of fuel that was removed from the left main tank of N33022 by NuVentures. They said this was all of the fuel that was in the tank. I estimated it was 16-18 ounces by using an exemplar 5 gallon bucket and filling it to a similar level with water and measuring the amount of water.

NuVenture mentioned the right main tank had 15 gallons in it when the defueled. I noticed both the right and left tip tanks were compromised.

I'll send my pictures of N33022 that I took during NuVenture's recovery, under separate emails.

Let me know of any questions.

Regards,

Brad Hernke

Hi Brad,

When you get a sec, can you please provide the pictures that you have from the day of recovery?
And again, thank you for confirming the amount to fuel recovered from each tank.
