Contact: Christina Delaurentis, Flight crew, XO Jet

The following is a synopsis of the information provided by the cabin attendant in a phone interview.

The attendant was briefed that the accident flight was an empty leg and was briefed to be belted up to 10,000 ft msl. She was in the lavatory belted during the climb and after 15 minutes lapsed, she unsecured herself from the seat and started to perform her duties. About 5 minutes after, she felt her stomach drop and started to "float". Subsequently, she landed hard on the deck and bounced multiple times and reached for the sides of the cabin as a brace. She added that she noticed that a multi-function display was out. While on the cabin floor and after about a minute passed, she yelled towards the crew that she was seriously injured. The airplane landed back at their departure airport where she was medically treated for her injuries.
