The following is a synopsis of the information provided by [REDACTED] in an email exchange and telephone conversation.

[REDACTED] reported that he and a senior mechanic examined the accident airplane, a Cessna 140, N4179N, for insurance purposes. The mechanics examined the brake system and found no anomalies. The mechanics did not find any defects, discrepancies, or issues with the airplane that would have precluded normal operation. [REDACTED] noted that the airplane had been maintained exceedingly well.
